A vulnerable commu
ontact with our Board of Governors, the South Walton Conservation and Land Trust developed an “affordable housing” policy in its strategic plan in 1994, the South Walton Conservation and Development Trust spent 18 months and more than $3 million to prepare a conservation and development plan that had been fully implemented. It would have been a course of development in South Walton.

This comprehensive effort covered elements such as land use, education, transportation and mobility, housing, and recreation. It also covered affordable housing, or workforce housing.

The group took a walking tour during Seaside Prize weekend.

In 1994, the South Walton Conservation and Development Trust spent 18 months and more than $3 million to prepare a conservation and development plan that had been fully implemented. It would have been a course of development in South Walton.

This comprehensive effort covered elements such as land use, education, transportation and mobility, housing, and recreation. It also covered affordable housing, or workforce housing.

The group took a walking tour during Seaside Prize weekend.

In 1994, the South Walton Conservation and Development Trust spent 18 months and more than $3 million to prepare a conservation and development plan that had been fully implemented. It would have been a course of development in South Walton.

This comprehensive effort covered elements such as land use, education, transportation and mobility, housing, and recreation. It also covered affordable housing, or workforce housing.

The group took a walking tour during Seaside Prize weekend.

In 1994, the South Walton Conservation and Development Trust spent 18 months and more than $3 million to prepare a conservation and development plan that had been fully implemented. It would have been a course of development in South Walton.

This comprehensive effort covered elements such as land use, education, transportation and mobility, housing, and recreation. It also covered affordable housing, or workforce housing.

The group took a walking tour during Seaside Prize weekend.

In 1994, the South Walton Conservation and Development Trust spent 18 months and more than $3 million to prepare a conservation and development plan that had been fully implemented. It would have been a course of development in South Walton.

This comprehensive effort covered elements such as land use, education, transportation and mobility, housing, and recreation. It also covered affordable housing, or workforce housing.

The group took a walking tour during Seaside Prize weekend.